Talking Movies

The following item from the June issue of the Pacific Telephone Magazine outlines the latest development in the talking moving picture. Scientific developments which will revolutionize the presentation of motion pictures in the largest metropolitan theatres as well as the earliest theatres in the little towns have just been announced as perfected by the Western Electric Company and Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc. These developments are the result of years of research in the Bell Telephone Laboratories, the research laboratories of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Western Electric Company. They involve a system for the synchronization of motion pictures with reproduced sounds having a degree of naturalness never before attained.

This invention brings to audiences in every corner of the world the music of the greatest symphony orchestra and the vocal entertainment of the operatic, vaudeville, and theatrical fields. The system is available to all motion-picture producers for synchronization of any film that they produce. Its use is not confined by any means to the presentation of pictures. It will be available for use in the educational, commercial, and religious fields as well as that of amusement.

This system is considered by scientists a distinct advance not only in the motion picture field but in that of voice communication as well. Experiments which proved the practicability of the invention have been conducted for many months at the Brooklyn studio and laboratories of Warner Brothers and at the Warner Theatre in Broadway. The invention will make it possible for every performance in a motion-picture theatre to have full orchestration accompaniment to the picture regardless of the size or character of the house. A corporation has been formed to record the synchronization of music for motion-picture producers all over the world, and to distribute the invention among theatre owners. The board of directors of this corporation include Walter J. Rich, president; Samuel L. Warner, first vice president; Eugene C. C. Rich, second vice-president; Albert Warner, treasurer and Waddill Catchings.

The apparatus by which combined films and sounds records will be reproduced in motion-picture theatres is no more complicated from the standpoint of operation than ordinary motion-picture projector. No special skill or technician is required of the operator. If the film breaks, there is no interference with the accuracy of synchronization. The sound record is not controlled by the film itself. The system represents successful combination and conversion to motion-picture use of three major research developments.

The first of these is the electric system of recording. This method employs a high quality microphone of an improved type, electrical amplifying apparatus and a record-cutting mechanism. Recording may be carried on at considerable distance from the source of sound, so that the actors may be grouped naturally in any scene and need not be crowded before a microphone.

The second essential feature is a remarkable electrical reproducer which converts the movements of a needle in the grooves of a sound record into electrical vibrations. The electrical currents from

ALAMEDA GIRL IS ATTACKED BY STRANGLER

Attacker of Fifteen Year Old Girl Uses Same Tactics as Those of Strangler

Employing the same tactics as those used by the notorious strangler, who has been terrorizing the Bay region the past months, a man made an attack upon Helen Lawrence, fifteen-year old daughter of Mrs. J. E. Lawrence, 1524 Morton street, Alameda, yesterday afternoon.

According to the report of the Alameda police, the man entered on the pretext of renting an apartment and when he found that Helen was alone made the attack. Fearing that someone would enter the home, the strangler released his victim when the telephone bell rang.

The man accompanied by a woman, had inspected the apartment early in the day and returned alone yesterday afternoon, according to Mrs. Lawrence.

Police began an immediate search of the neighborhood and Alameda beaches but no clue to the man was found.

LEADERS FEAR KAISER'S BOOK

(By Universal Service)

LONDON, June 12.—German monarchist leaders are said to be awaiting with fear and trembling the revelations in the former Kaiser's memoirs about to be published in Leipzig.

According to the Daily News, which claims its information is derived from reliable sources, the original draft of the memoirs contained these three sensational chapters: "I shall reign," giving a detailed account of monarchist movements and activities; "A monarchist republic," wherein Wilhelm claims Von Hindenburg accepted the office of President of the German Republic merely as a means of assisting the former Kaiser to regain the throne.

"A son's perfidy," containing an astonishing outburst against the former Crown Prince.

Wilhelm, having refused to give the proofs of his memoirs to the monarchist heads for perusal and censorship—says the Daily News—the latter broke into the Leipzig printing office early this year and stole them.

Since February many representations have been made by influential monarchists to the former Crown Prince, to Von Hindenburg, and others to induce Wilhelm to suppress these chapters. It is now believed that they were withdrawn at the eleventh hour.

The former Kaiser is said to have decided to write them after the insistence of a section of the monarchists that he abdicate his rights to the throne in favor of his eldest son.

SHERIFF STARTS SENTENCE IN CHICAGO JAIL

Sheriff of Chicago, Cook County is Given Jail Sentence for Court Contempt

(By Universal Service)

WHEATON, Ill., June 12.—Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman of Cook county, Chicago, sits in a little grey cell in the Du Page County jail here tonight with some thirty other prisoners. Instead of being the lord and master of the cages, he is just one of the prisoners. He was sentenced to serve thirty days in jail and pay a $2,000 fine for contempt of court by Federal Judge Wilkerson.

Sheriff Hoffman arrived in Wheaton about noon and visited with Sheriff John Heisterman until shortly before three o'clock when the federal mittimus arrived from Chicago. Sheriff Heisterman signed the commitment papers and the man who is the chief peace officer in a county of five million souls was led to his cell.

There was a cheer from the other prisoners as the greyed head of the sheriff showed in the doorway. They had all vied with each other to be his cell mate, for there isn't room in the little jail for thirty prisoners, and allow each one a cell to himself.

The prisoners must wash their own clothes in the little basin in the cell and then hang them up on the line which stretches from one bar to another. There is a common old fashioned tub in the jail which is used for bathing purposes by all of the men.

The sheriff smiled as he was led to his cell.

"I'm just going to spend my vacation here," he said. "I'm going to forget all about my business and just content myself with life here. It won't be so bad."

Wesley Westbrook, former Warden of the county jail, who was sentenced to serve four months in the Dekalb County jail at Sycamore began serving his sentence at almost the same time as the sheriff. He also was adjudged in contempt of the court. The contempt proceedings grew out of the freedom of the jail granted to Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake beer barons.

C.F. DONNELLY ENTERS RACE FOR OLD POST

Charles F. Donnelly, coroner of Contra Costa County in making his announcement yesterday that he would enter the race at the August primaries to succeed himself issued the following statement:

"In aspiring to succeed myself as coroner, I desire to place before the people something of my record during the past seven years. I consider that of all other public offices, a public trust and that voters in casting their ballot should do so with an understanding of the qualifications of the man who aspires for such office.

"One of the most important functions of a coroner is in the conducting of inquests. The immediate relatives as well as the people at large, are interested in knowing what were the facts surrounding a person's death. It has been my honest effort to conduct all inquests with thoroughness and fairness and without regard to who the proven facts in any instance might benefit. Likewise, have I in each instance, endeavored to give due and proper consideration for the relatives of the deceased.

"The records of my office have at all times been open for inspection as well as the courtesies thereof. I invite the voters to an examination of my records during the past seven years, with the view of assisting them in determining my fitness for reelection.

"In order to carry on the duties of coroner, of necessity, deputy coroners, throughout the county, who are skilled undertakers, must be appointed. Mr. Wilson, my deputy in Richmond for the past seven years, having announced his candidacy for the office of coroner and without having advised me of his intentions and at a time while he was still my deputy, made it necessary for me to appoint someone else a deputy to fill such office; and I take this means of announcing to the people that I have appointed for such office, Bert Curry, an undertaker in this city, of ability and one whom I consider well qualified to fill this office.

"In conducting the affairs of coroner, I have done so with the utmost respect for the dead and I have refused undertakers to commercialize my office.

"I am grateful to all my deputies and extend to them my thanks for the services rendered by them to me during the past seven years. And I recall with pleasure the harmonious relations which have existed between us during this time."

MAKING USE OF VACATION

The United States public health service offers some advice that is timely at the inception of the vacation season. For indoor workers it indorses the open air change and for those whose occupation keeps them outdoors it would reverse the prescription. This seems logical if vacation means a change. That certainly is what it should mean. There is rest in doing something different from what we do every day. There is recreation in doing for a small part of the day something different from what we are engaged in doing most of the day. Avocation is desirable in the way of change and to keep one in good shape for the regular vocation.

The health service also urges the vacationist to get new ideas. Therein as the advantage of seeking new environment in vacation time, meeting new and strange people and getting the point of view of others. All folks are interesting if touched on the right side. Few indeed but have some information of value to import if it lies only in the cocksureness of the speaker that he has plumbed the depths of human knowledge. The information that isn't true often is as interesting as something that is. In the smoking room of a Pullman one may hear much delivered as by an authority that has little foundation but it is entertaining and not less enlightening as specimens of public opinion.

On the other hand one may hear much of truth developed as the result of experience. The vacationist who keeps eyes and ears open and is as friendly as others are willing to be with him, short of lending money, will be able to pick up information that will be enlightening in various ways. None has more knowledge than one needs and there is none but needs more.

THE NATIONAL LEG-SHOW

The wool producers of the nation are the latest to report on the hardships that have resulted from the increasing desire of the women of the world to display their legs by the shortening of their skirts, thus decreasing the amount of material required, and naturally the consumption of wool. The National Association of Wool Growers which has been holding its sessions in Salt Lake City, Utah, while it has not yet reached the point of asking the president to exhort, or congress by legislation to compel the ladies to lengthen their skirts, and thus use more wool, are pretty close to that point. Since 1922 to 1925, the association declares, and quotes the agricultural bureau of economics as its authority, there has been a decrease of 26 per cent (over one hundred million pounds) in the amount of wool used for clothing purposes.

We have to buy our characters on the installment plan, a beginning down and a little something added unendingly all the rest of our lives. And it has been the unhappy lot of most of us to realize now and again that we are getting way behind in our payments.—Arkansas Gazette.

THOUGHT and COMMENT

This device passes into an amplifier and then operate a high quality loud-speaker of an improved type capable of filling practically any motion picture auditorium.

The third development is the link between the reproducer and the audience in a theatre. An adaptation of the public-address system makes it possible to pick up electrical vibrations from the producer, amplify them, and by means of properly located loud-speaking telephones transform them into sound. The loudness is so regulated as to give the illusion that the source is the actors whose pictures appear on the screen. In case of musical programs a specially constructed loud-speaking telephone insures the correct values and naturalness.

The combination of these three factors in a complete and effective system required the development of a mechanism for keeping the film and sound producing instrument in absolute synchronism both during recording and during reproduction. It was essential that the system be capable of easy operation in a theatre without requiring special skill. To meet these requirements, both the film and the sound device are set in their respective machines with a given marker in the proper place.

and the two machines are then speeded up from rest, together, by the simple device of having them coupled to the opposite ends of the same motor.

The mechanism for taking the pictures with these markers on the original film and record could not be accomplished in so simple a manner, since the camera had to be left free to be moved about on its tripod to change the angle of view. In this case two motors are used, one to drive the camera and one to drive the sound recording machine. An ingenious electrical gearing device has been developed whereby the two machines can be started from rest and maintained in synchronism not only after they are up to speed, but during the period while they are speeding up.

It was necessary in developing the system to perfect a method of making sound records which will run at least fifteen minutes without distortion either of the high or of the low notes. Through the use of two reproducing machines, alternately, interruption in the accompaniment will be avoided. Reproduction in the theatre preserves the correct relationship of each sound to the others, the intensity varying in the same proportion as in the enacted scene or musical program.

An important use of the new system will be in providing musical programs for motion pictures already taken. This is accomplished by projecting the picture in the usual way and recording the music, as previously cued in synchronism with the projection instead of in synchronism with the photographing. Any picture which has ever been produced can be orchestrated and synchronized. The sound synchronization is not dependent on recording at the time of the exposure of the film.

The difficulties of accurate synchronization which had been encountered in earlier attempts lay in the necessity for keeping the records close to the recording equipment in order that a satisfactory reproduction might be made. The new process of electrical recording makes it possible to make faithful reproductions at a distance from the source of sound.

The most difficult part of the development was the reproduction of music or speech from the apparatus in such a manner that it would be as loud as music or speech from a real performance, and at the same time a faithful copy in all respects. The special electrical device for converting the motion of the needle bearing on the record into electrical vibrations and the use of a modified public address system overcame these difficulties.

EMBROIDERY PROVES SMARTEST TRIMMING FOR NEW FROCKS

Contrast, the Sponsored Note, Nowhere Better Featured Than in the New Hand-Wrought Details

By MONA MULLEN

NOT satisfied with the natural loveliness of the colors which fashion has featured for this season, the smart couturiers of Paris are adding extra touches, beautiful bits of embroidery artfully placed upon sleeve, collar, pocket or front of dress. The latest embroideries are beautiful, yet simple—decorations which smart femininity will be sure to approve and attempt to make. There will be no difficulty in reproducing the smart embroideries, for their stitches are as easy as the plainest of sewing stitches. The transfer whose motifs give a shadow effect supplies one right and one left of four designs 2 1/4 to 8 1/2 inches.

Nos. 13085-13086—Embroideries, Designed to Enhance Loveliness of New Season's Frocks.

These motifs may be used on household decorations as well as wearing apparel.

The other transfer furnishes twenty-six dainty sprays ranging in height from 1 to 3 1/2 inches, besides 1 1/2 yards of 1/2-inch border.

Because of the smaller motifs included, many of these designs will be found appropriate and effective in the decoration of children's garments.

A great deal of gold and silver are combined with the new season's embroideries because the colors combined are in the fashionable tints of materials. These include moonstone gray, bois de rose, of which there are many shades, Jenny rose, water sprite, blue lavender, dogwood brown, phantom red, bellflower blue, and setting sun which reflects the golden beauty of the sunset. Sometimes a note of black is introduced, not to give soberness, but to supply contrast, for the embroideries desire not to be sober, but gay, gloriously gay. Many of the leading color schemes have been borrowed from the Russians, than whom there are no greater experts in the blending of brilliant tones.

BROKEN HEARTS of HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

'BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD' with Louise Dresser in a Warner picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mutually attracted, Betsy Terwilliger and Hal Chutney arrive in Hollywood as prize winners of newspaper contests for movie try-outs. They are depressed by the number of people seeking work. Movie oldtimers see a mysterious resemblance in Betsy to someone they cannot remember. Hal flops diametrically as a cowboy. Betsy, hand ed a scanty one-piece bathing suit to don, is shocked by the sophistication of the "bathing beauties." She witnesses the humiliation of Virginia Perry, erstwhile star, now a failure, and is strangely affected by her eyes.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

Virginia's eyes reflected the quick recognition of a stranger, the instant kindling of an interest and liking, the swift forging of a bond of sympathy. Involuntarily, Betsy felt a smile softening the horror her expression betrayed; and there was a faint, wondering, answering smile upon the woman's face.

"Who is that?" Betsy whispered to Clare when the woman had turned to continue her chatting with the subdued girls.

"That, honey, is a poor devil who's a sample of the other thing the movies can do—as well as make fine ladies like Pickford. She's Virginia Perry, once the most famous actress on the screen and the toast of Hollywood in the first years movies were made here."

Virginia Perry? Betsy, who for so long had been studying and admiring the screen and its people and its history, knew the name at once. She had encountered it many times in the "fan magazine" stories of old days and old players. Virginia Perry, indeed!—the screen's first and greatest woman star, whose light had gone out these many years ago, but whose aura still left a faint radiance in the movie heavens although her identity was lost and hidden forever in this burned out body shell.

"Oh, what—why?" began Betsy, going to ask. How did she get this way? "shrugged Clare. "It's too long a story for now, honey; they'll be calling us any minute. But there's just this to it: when she was sitting on top of the heap she fell for the big money boys with the greasy tongues. Nothing wrong, so far as I can make out. Just liked the bright lights and poster supports. But her husband couldn't see it that way, and divorced her. It's another case of the old saying. 'She's more to be pitied than scorned.'"

The woman was approaching now, and Clare, biting off her whistled narrative to Betsy, forced a grin. Clare, older than the other girls, and on the strength of an off and on studio friendship of several years' standing, was more familiar with Mrs. Perry than the others, although sharing in common their rather awestricken attitude in her presence.

"Loan me your make-up, like a good girl, will you, Clare? If I get he stuff on before the assistant lends me, I might get by—but if I go into my room to do it, he'll catch me before I get the hangover painted out of my face and then—good night! And I need the money."

"Help yourself, Mrs. Perry," Virginia sat down heavily at Clare's table, and as she hastened her initial preparations of putting on a facial "base," she nodded smilingly at Betsy, and asked:

"Who's your little friend?"

"New kid, getting her first crack at this bum business."

Virginia shook her head dubiously; there was a hint of warning, a note of regret, in the gesture. But she said nothing.

A sharp rap upon the door, and a bawling masculine voice of warning caused a ripple of apprehension to pass over the girls, all of whom were now in their bathing suits and putting the final touches to their make-up.

"Shall I tell him we're not dressed yet—he can't come in!" whispered Clare intensely to Virginia.

Virginia shrugged philosophically. "I might as well take it now as later."

One by one the girls drew off in a group near the door as the assistant, a nervous and grim faced man in shirt sleeves and suspenders, stepped in and caught instant sight of Clare. He advanced upon her in the stillness—

"Trying to sneak one over on me, eh? You're a fine one, Virginia. Ginned up again!"

Virginia put down her make-up box wearily; for an instant she remained with bowed head, before swinging to face the assistant. Betsy, at the next table, wanted to cover her ears; wanted to run. But, instead, she remained glued to her place, fascinated by this raw tragedy of real life that was being unfolded before her astonished senses.

"I'm sorry, Ted—began Virginia.

"Yeh, the same old—same old story," he cursed in disgust. "You swore up and down that if we saw you another chance you wouldn't hit the bottle again. And now look at you. We lost two hours—whole company held up—director, stars salaries—everything lost—waiting for you. If we'd been able to find someone offhand to take your place you'd have been barred from the studio forever. As it is, you're cooked—"

"Please, Ted. Just this once more—please." She was pleading in a maddening way that drew Betsy with its degradation even as it wrung pity from her.

"Can it, Virginia. I won't listen. We're looking for someone else for the part. You might as well beat it, and don't let the Boss see you, for he swore he'd have you thrown out."

"Ted, please—you must listen." Virginia, unmindful of parading her shame before the listening girls, clutched the fat assistant's perspiring hand, and pleaded, "I couldn't help it this time. Last night I came across something that just broke me up. Look, Ted—"

With shaking fingers she fished an old tintype from her frowsy bag, and displayed it to the assistant. He glanced at it a moment, then threw it down upon the table where Betsy, her eyes not attracted to it despite her wish not to look or listen, saw indistinctly that it was the old photograph of a man, a young woman, and a babe in arms.

Virginia was crying softly now, in a beaten way.

"I was raking through some old stuff that I thought I'd burned fifteen years ago, when I found this. It's the picture of my husband and baby and me before—oh, you know, Ted. She was talking in a low, tense voice now; inaudible to the girls at the far end of the room, and almost so to Betsy and Clare at hand. The assistant, despite his obvious grim determination to be inflexible, showed signs of being moved.

"It unnerved me, Ted—sort of skinned up out of the past and smashed me in the face. I went to pieces—and the only way I could find a bit of rest was in the bottle. That's all there was to it, Ted—little enough, perhaps, but I just couldn't help it."

The assistant was frowning now, and wavering. Virginia rested trembling fingers on his forearm—fine, tapering fingers they were, all that was left of her former charm.

"I swear, Ted—I'll do better from now on. Somewhere I feel that in finding the picture, I've found something else. Something that's been missing all these years. Something I never expected to find again—and didn't care about. Now I do care, and I'll be a little different, I promise solemnly."

The assistant hid his compassion in throaty gruffness. "I can't promise, Virginia, but I'll see the Boss. I'll get McLain to speak up for you, too. He likes you, and what a star like McLain says around this joint cuts more than a summer's supply of ice. Get into your costume as quick as you can. And come down on the set. I'll help if you're all ready to work."

The fat assistant raddled out, shaking his head worriedly, after ordering "C'mon, you mermoids—down on the set!"

While the girls began to troop out frolicking, Betsy noticed that none of them wore a thing to tell their meagre swimming suits. She felt hot and wet inside at this demonstration of the brazenness of life behind the screens, where girls could romp without thinking anything of it, through crowded halls, a thronged yard, and on the set, before gawping workers and hangarons in suits that would be considered positively too indecent and abbreviated for even the privacy of the Hoosier Girls' Club (haha, where Betsy had learned to swim.

Baptist Church of San Pablo to Open D. V. B. S. on Monday

An item of news of special interest to parents of children of school age is the opening of the Vacation Bible school, at the First Baptist church of San Pablo on Monday.

The school starts at 9 promptly, in the mornings of every school day and lets out at 12. A large corps of teachers and helpers will handle the hundred or more students that are expected at the school. The boys and girls will engage in songs, yells, Bible memory work and drills, dramatics, expressional activities and craft work, according to their ability. The vacation spirit will prevail and the program will be rather one of pleasure than of regular school work. Parents are invited to inspect the work of the school at their pleasure.

The motto of the school will be one word "Others," and the program of the school will be hinged upon this theme. In making the wonderful array of articles in the craft department the children will make two of each article, the poorest of the two for themselves and the better for "others." Donations of wood are greatly needed in the craft department, and will be gladly received by Rev. C. T. Axworthy, the principal of the school. The school is located in the church at Bush and Twenty-second street.

It Talks!

"IT TALKS!" exclaimed the astounded Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, one June day in 1876, as he held to his ear the receiver of Alexander Graham Bell's telephone, then on exhibit at the Philadelphia centennial exposition, while the young inventor, some distance away, spoke into the transmitter.

Time has not detracted from the drama of this scene, nor robbed the emperor's tribute of its truth. Fifty remarkable years have passed. Important among their contributions to human progress has been the development of Bell's idea into a nationwide, universal telephone service. But the wonder of the telephone is still that which arrested men's thoughts a half century ago—that it can talk.

Herein lies its unique value to the individual and the nation. It provides, as nothing else can, a means of speeding over great distances, privately and without interruption, the intimate, personal tones of the human voice. It projects personality. It unites millions of Americans, though separated by the breadth of a continent, into a single vast commonwealth of speech.

SMILE SHOW AT THE CALIFORNIA

The greatest smile show of the year comes to the California theatre today with the International Trio heading the big five act road show vaudeville bill, in conjunction with the screen feature, "Lovey Mary," a comedy-drama featuring Bessie Love and William Haines.

Perhaps the main feature of the five acts will be supplied by The International Trio of instrumentalists singers and dancers. A gorgeous stage setting, some colorful dressing and some real talent are the three outstanding points of their offering. Their dancing especially of the international order is well worth while. "Smiles, Snickers and Songs" with Fay and Welsh, as the dispensers, is a snappy presentation of the colored minstrel man working for the medicine fakir. In this case the speller is Miss Welsh and she hands out a fast line of chatter that both interests and amuses. Their comedy songs are one of the highlights of the bill.

In "Demonstrations of Diversity" Dell Day, is sure to be popular for he indulges in impersonations, offers comedy songs and stories in an inimitable fashion.

Turno and Jaxon in "A Little Surprise," and Jack and Buzz Williams in a songologue, complete the program.

On the screen will be seen "Lovey Mary," a rip-roaring comedy-drama of love, laughs and thrills. You'll find them all in this great picturization of the famous novel by Alice Hegan Rice the author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

She flits through this tale like a streak of happiness—Lovey Mary, the glad-girl of the orphanage. She wanted love, she craved excitement—and her adventures before she got them will give you the most entertaining time of your life.

Bessie Love in the title role, with William Haines playing opposite her, are supported by a brilliant supporting cast including Mary Alden, Vivian Ogden, Russell Simpson, Eileen Percy and Rosa Gorge.

Other features on the same program include a "Mutt and Jeff" cartoon; "Kinograms" world news events; Carl Richard's California orchestra and Larry Canelo.

Another Huge Slash in Federal Taxes to be Pivotal Point in War for Control of Congress

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, June 12.—A titanic struggle over demands for another huge slash in Federal taxes next December will be a pivotal point in the battle between Democrats and Republicans for control of Congress in the fall elections.

Preliminary skirmishing in the Senate and House in the last two weeks, coupled with the blunt warning of administration leaders that no further cut will be permitted before 1928, has thrown the two parties as far apart as the Poles.

Latest developments make it plain that tax reduction will rival modification of the dry laws and the World Court as an outstanding issue before the nation when the voters go to the polls to elect an entirely new House and a third of the Senate. It promises to be more clear-cut as an issue between the parties.

Direct charges that the administration is juggling the country's finances to hold up any new cut until just before the 1928 presidential election will be the rallying point of the Democratic offensive.

The offensive will be led by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, who drafted much of the nation's war financing legislation.

Both Simmons and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Upper House, have charged that the administration is putting off tax reduction until such time as it can be used strategically to re-elect President Coolidge.

On the floor of the Senate, with important legislation still pending and Congress eager to get away for the summer, the tax fight has gained only limited attention.

But on the stump, the issue is expected to be thrown into high relief, with Democratic war horses driving it home from end to end of the country.

The alluring hope the Democrats will hold out to the over-receptive taxpayer is of another cut at the December session rivaling the $380,000,000 reduction made a few months ago.

They will contend that the taxpayer never got the full reduction to which he was entitled by the state of the nation's finances. Supporting this, they will point to the huge revenues, far in excess of treasury estimates, which have poured in since the reduction.

Secretary Mellon's unexpected decision that these revenues were sufficient to meet the government's fiscal needs without borrowing a penny for the next three months, will be turned into additional ammunition for the Democrats.

Republicans, however, will find no dearth of arguments to support their position.

Conservative financing directed by Secretary Mellon, financial genius of the administration, has put the treasury in an exceptionally strong position, with large benefits to the taxpayer, they will contend.

The sinking fund is being reduced about $900,000,000 in the present fiscal year, which must ultimately help the taxpayer.

But the full effect of the recent $380,000,000 tax cut will be felt in the coming fiscal year, and the treasury will have larger obligations to meet.

"Can we afford to endanger the nation's finances by headlong reduction of taxes, when no one can predict what our revenues will be?" the Republicans will ask.

They will counsel patience, with the promise that the tax burden will be reduced again the minute it becomes certain that this can be done with complete safety.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and one of the financial giants on the Republican side, probably will play a leading part in his party's fight. He has lost no time in warning his Democratic colleagues against tampering with taxes until the new revenue bill has been subjected to a thorough test.

Smoot has contended that the treasury anticipates a surplus of only $11,000,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927. Unless an exceptionally large revenue should increase the surplus far beyond this sum, the Republicans argue, another early tax slash is clearly out of the question.

Broadway is the Background for Richmond Film

With the reputation of a big New York stage success, with the glamorous back-stage life of Broadway for a background, with a brilliant cast of screen and stage favorites, headed by Tom Moore, Bessie Love and Harrison Ford, and with the directorial stamp of Herbert Brenon, "The Song and Dance Man" Paramount picturization of George M. Cohan's theatrical comedy is a photoplay to look forward to with pleasant anticipation. It will be screened at the Richmond theatre today only.

"The Song and Dance Man" revolves around a youthful vaudeville, whose tremendous conceit binds him to the fact that he is nothing but a "ham" actor. He is, withal, a happy-go-lucky chap, generous, self-sacrificing, and every ready to lend a fellow trouper a helping hand. His sympathetic and later romantic interest in a charming little actress and his efforts to help her in her climb to the musical comedy heights are vividly and entertainingly pictured.

Other features on the same program include "Her Boy Friend" a Larry Semon comedy; and "Kinograms" world news events.

SUZANNE EASY VICTOR OVER MISS BROWNE

(By Universal Service)

PARIS, June 12.—Playing in her most flashing form in a heavy rain, Suzanne Lenglen today defeated Mary K. Browne of California in the finals of the International Hard Courts Tennis championship, 6-1, 6-0.

The American girl, who was a national champion when the temperamental French star was a child wonder, explained it all when she shook Suzanne's hand over her net at the end of the match:

"It wasn't the wet court or the heavy ball that did it. She was just too good for me; that is the only explanation I have to offer. Congratulations, Suzanne."

An instant later the rain abruptly ceased, and as if to smile on the French victory, the sun came out for the first time during the day.

To compensate for the American loss, Vincent Richards, and Howard Kinsey won a smashing, hard-fought victory in the doubles when they defeated the famous French stars, Lacoste and Borotra 9-7, 9-11, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Miss Brown's explanation of Suzanne's victory is the only logical one. The American girl fought gallantly, but was no match against Suzanne's brilliant strategy and perfect placements. There is no denying that the French champion was quicker to think and quicker to act than her opponent. Both suffered from the heavy wet courts, which were deluged with rain from 10:30 o'clock until after the match ended.

Miss Browne, who opposed Miss Lenglen through the scratching of Miss Willis from the tournament following an operation, went on the courts with the best wishes

Truck Damaged In Collision

Slight damage was done and no one was injured when a Ford delivery truck, driven by Ed Willis and a car operated by George Page, 1631 Florida avenue, collided at Eleventh street and Macdonald avenue last night. The front axle of the Ford was shattered but neither driver received injuries.

of all, but the money was on her French opponent.

Miss Browne made a brilliant start, facing Suzanne to extend herself. The former took the game to 30-15 with placements, and then Suzanne freed Miss Browne out of her position and won on two of Miss Browne's outs.

In the second game Miss Browne led 40-15 on her service, when she netted two shots to make to deuce. The American won this game—her only victory of the match—when Suzanne netted a placement shot.

Miss Browne came out for the second set apparently tired, but with determination written on her face. But determination was futile against the skillful placements of Suzanne, who started in whirlwind fashion and won the game, 4-2.

From thence on the match became monotonous as the French girl, with mechanical precision, placed ball after ball out of reach of the American. Thud after thud was heard as the ball left the French champion's racket and then struck the soggy courts, far beyond the American's reach.

Once or twice during the match it appeared that Miss Browne might secure an advantage with her drop cut shots over the net, but Suzanne shifted her tactics and again resorted to placement which sent Miss Browne running vainly from the back-courts to the net as the French girl's drives went whizzing past her for points.

Suzanne, while easily superior in all departments of the game, was unable to give her usual demonstrations of cut-like springs across the courts, due to the wet grounds, which became almost soggy before the end of the match.

It was the consensus of opinion in the press box that Miss Browne was the victim of a bad decision in the third game of the second set, when the umpire credited the French girl with a game.

Earlier in the match Miss Browne displayed splendid sporting instinct when Suzanne returned a ball close to the line and the linesman called it out. Miss Browne turned and said:

"I refuse to accept the decision. The ball was good. And the point goes to Suzanne."

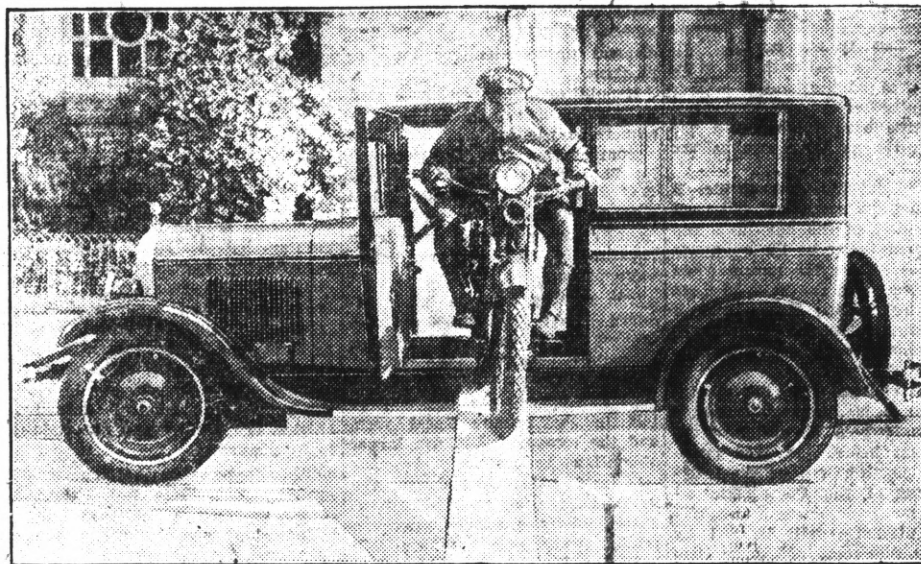

Even though the score ended 6-1, 6-0, there was unanimous praise for the American, who fought gamely on against odds, which became overwhelming shortly after the beginning of the day's play.

HEAVYWEIGHTS TO FIGHT HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Ralph Smith, heavyweight champion of the Pacific Coast and Johnny Zeigler, of San Francisco, will collide in the main of the Richmond fight club's fight program here next Friday night at Winter pavilion.

This will be the first fight over the ten round distance that has been staged in this vicinity in the past fifteen years.

Zeigler is being managed by Tim McGrath of San Francisco and Tim has been behind many champions and near champions. Zeigler is a big, tough, 200-pounder, who has been main eventing in the interior towns such as Sacramento, Stockton and Modesto, and there he has been knocking out such good heavyweights as Tom Moreno, Fred Winsor's heavyweight, Battling Ivy, Hal Yont, Leon Chevelier, George Gunboat Smith, and many others. McGrath predicts a victory for Zeigler and thinks the big boy will pull a surprise against Smith.

Young P. Villa, clever Oakland 105 pounder, who has made a tremendous hit here, will meet the toughest opponent he has been asked to meet yet, when he tangles with Bobby Mars in the six round semi-windup. Mars already has a decision over Villa, but the Oaklander has improved since that time.

Jimmy West, Oakland 145 pounder, who has won eleven straight bouts will meet Bud Josephs of Los Angeles in the special event. Josephs is a hard puncher. Bud Korn of Richmond vs. Kid Shadow of Oakland.

Young Mike Gibbons vs. Johnny Woods, 110 pounds; Frankie Neil, popular Richmond, and ex-bantamweight champion of the world will referee all bouts. Neil has gotten by in nice style in every bout that he has refereed here and hasn't tossed a bloomer.

In a dual regatta at Lake Cayuga, New York, the Cornell crew decisively defeated the University of California crew by two lengths. Cornell's victory was something to talk about as the boat flashed over the finish line with the California crew two lengths behind and the California Junior shell more than length behind the senior shell. This is to certify that I had inflammation in my right eye so bad that I could hear no light and in the morning I could not see at all. I was troubled with this for about three years ago. My eye has been in splendid condition ever since and has required no more doctoring.
